

Into Town

Date: July 2018

Review: by Laurie Groe (Youth Services Manager, Caledon Public Library)

Cuddly critters, Chick and Duckling, are back for another delightful installment of the acclaimed Railfence Bunch series, this time in Into Town. Authored by Carolyn j. Morris and illustrated by Richard McNaughton, this 7th adventure takes the adorable duo into town of a rural community. There's lots of new buildings to see – an elementary school, bank, post office, public library and more! Chick and Duckling have such an endearing spirit – one can't help but revel in all their excitement. This is a part of how Carolyn entices us all, especially early and developing readers, to get hooked or catch on – the rhythmic melody of her stories when told through the eyes of Chick and Duckling truly are captivating, to young and old alike.
