

No sitting on the fence for this author

If you've been to a fall fair, you've likely seen Carolyn Morris & her books.

Morris' country roots began on the family farm on the 10th line of the old Notawasaga Township. Her passion fills her classroom, home and church life. Her enthusiasm is compelling to those who meet her.

Storytelling in the classroom for over 30 years has extended to speaking engagements and workshops for all ages. When she's not writing, Morris enjoys hiking and exploring antique shops across Ontario.

She established Railfence Books in 2011, inspired by her vision to bring wholesome books to all generations. Railfence Books' first release in July of 2011 was Mourning Dove, followed by Barn Swallows in November 2012, and Pine Warbler in August 2013. Chickadees at Christmas was released August 2014.

Children's books

In 2015, Railfence Books presented Railfence Bunch. Morris' new children's series, Railfence Bunch, is rapidly filling the bookshelves of libraries and bookstores. Each book engages the auditory for her books, she is gaining a reputation for sharing her country roots

*“Wonderful books
from a remarkable woman.
Carolyn j Morris is like a breath of spring in the depths of winter.*

—Peter Campbell, Screenwriter, Actor.

ence with rhyme, rhythm, and repetition.

Carolyn j Morris' stories show respect for rural living and farm life. Aside from no-through visits to seniors residences with her baby chicks and ducklings and at a variety of speaking engagements.

THANK YOU
FARMVIEW